Dear Arthur Martin:

The most recent letter arriving from you is dated October 24, 1997, and Mr. Weisberg replied under date of November 5. I attach a copy of the reply.

As you have been told, his health is not good and he tires easily. As he can, he continues on the work in which he is engaged in an effort to complete it as far as possible while he is still able.

If you continue to correspond with him, please make your letters short and limit your questions to the more important aspects of your research. He has always been willing to help people as much as possible, but he is unable now to do as much as he has done in the past.

Sincerely,

Lillian Weisberg
